

Legal Research on Fastcase 7

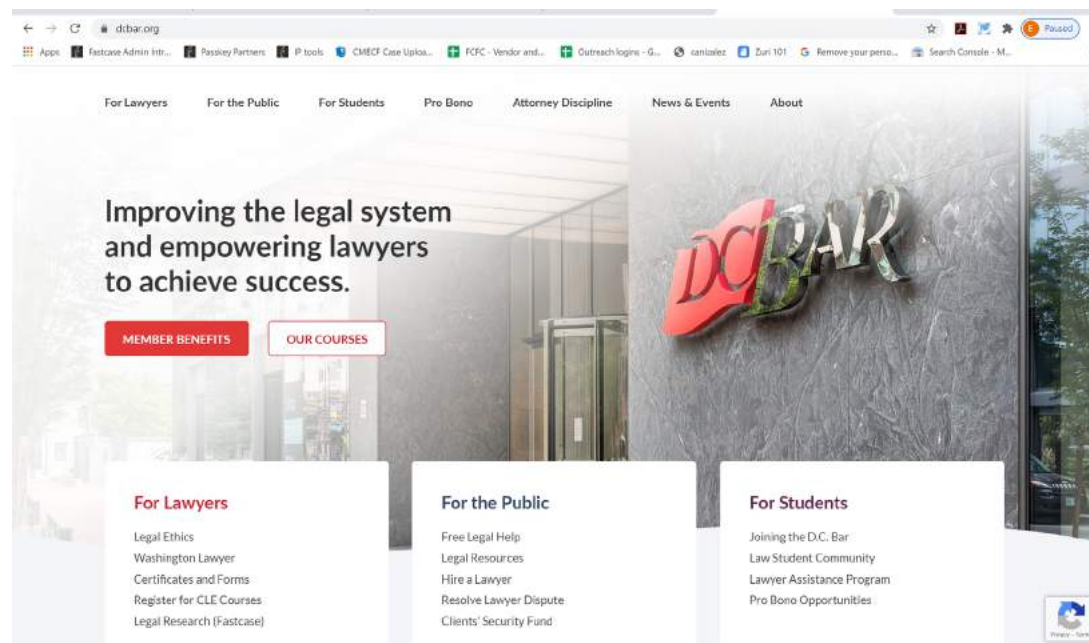

what is Fastcase?

Founded in 1999

- (A tech company that survived!)
- The mission was simple – create an alternative to Westlaw and Lexis for conducting research on primary law.
- This is not just a cheaper version of the big two, but something entirely different.
- We are now partners with 33 state bar associations, over 800,000 subscribers.

you already have access to Fastcase

Login through DC Bar homepage and click the Fastcase link to access. Search, and print as much as you like; we don't have a panic-inducing fee structure.

why should you try it?

The principle behind Fastcase is a lot like Google.

- More automation, less leg work.
- Researching on Fastcase is not like browsing through indexes on 90's Yahoo.
- Fastcase eliminates the "luck" element of haphazardly finding an important case early in your research.
- Find cases on purpose instead.

Before we begin: know the scope

Know the scope of what you're searching (the "corpus") so you aren't guessing what's in the database. www.fastcase.com/coverage

Scope of Coverage

Fastcase puts the whole national law library on your desktop, with online access to cases, statutes, regulations, court rules, and bar publications, right at your fingertips.

This page contains a comprehensive list of the materials included in the Fastcase legal research database. Use it to see what libraries are available and how far back in time those libraries extend.

The main content area shows an article titled 'Less May Be More When It Comes To Job References' by Daniel Schwartz. The article text reads: 'We have all heard the admonition that "less is more." In an opinion that will be released next week, the Connecticut Appellate Court reminds us just how true that admonition is. In fact, the court's decision gave one employer more than 400,000 reasons to heed the adage in the future.'

Below the text is a photograph of two men in white lab coats standing next to a small airplane on a tarmac.

The article continues: 'The case, Nelson v. Tradewind Aviation, LLC, arose from a defamation lawsuit. According to the court's opinion, the plaintiff had worked as a pilot for Tradewind Aviation for a summer back in 2007. At the end of the season, the company needed to downsize for the winter. The plaintiff and others were laid off. His termination paperwork indicated that he had been laid off due to lack of work.'
